Daladier Bluntly Says France Not To Cede Colonies

Fighting Premier Will Make Trip to Tunisia and Corsica Early in 1939; France Asks 'Where Is Trap?'

Watches Nazis

Daladier Prepares to Block German Attempt to Use Tension as Lever

(By The Associated Press)

Premier Daladier's blunt declaration that France had no intention of giving up any part of her territory today highlighted the Franco-Italian controversy, currently the most dangerous friction in a troubled world situation.

The fighting French premier announced his intention of visiting early in 1939 Tunisia and Corsica, figuring in Italian clamor for French territory.

Meanwhile France asked "Where is the trap?" as police guards restored peace in Tunisia and Corsica, where angry anti-Italian demonstrations yesterday replied to Italian agitation for these territories.

Heavy police reinforcements were thrown around the Italian consulates in Tunis and Sousse after riotous marchers had demonstrated, shouting "down with Italy!" yesterday in both cities.

The mayor of Ajaccio, Corsica, appealed to the populace for calm on the Mediterranean island after demonstrations last night in the streets of Ajaccio, Bastia and other Corsican cities.

Both Corsica, a department of France, and Tunisia were made goals of the Italian campaign by Fascist deputies who demonstrated Wednesday in Rome. Also named in the Italian agitation were Djibouti, port of French Somaliland, Savoy and Nice.

Authoritative sources said, was preparing to block any attempt by Germany to use the French-Italian tension as a lever to further the Nazis' own colonial demands.

The French press, although apparently in agreement with the friendship agreement which German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop is going to Paris to sign tomorrow, looked warily into it to find the game of the "Rome-Berlin axis."

The question everywhere to reports that von Ribbentrop might volunteer as mediator between Rome and Paris was, "At what price?"

L'Oeuvre, Daladier's own Radical-Socialist party newspaper, said Italy of the coincidence between the German minister's visit and the Italian agitation: "It is a trap."

Rome stepped up the tempo of demands for redress of "wrongs" attributed to France in the past. The newspaper Il Piccolo expressed shouts of Italy's "natural aspirations" and declared developments in the new "intolerable situation."

In China reports reaching Shanghai said that Japanese warships had massed in the Gulf of Tonking and were shelling Pakhoi, 70 miles east of the French Indo-China border.

This was believed to presage a new Japanese landing in South China, but both in China and Spain all warrents were quiet.

Bus Overturns

Philadelphia, Dec. 5 (AP)—A New York-to-Miami bus skidded from a fog-blurred highway and overturned today, injuring 21 passengers and the driver. Four were unhurt. Special police along the parkway where the highway from New York becomes Roosevelt Blvd. through the city lifted the injured out through shattered windows of the motorists. Automobiles of other drivers, groping through the pre-dawn fog, were commandeered to take the injured to hospitals. Some of those hurt did not receive medical attention for an hour after the accident as drivers became lost in the fog and were unable to find the hospitals.

Masaryk Resigns

Czech Legation Says Minister Will Terminate Service Effective January 1

London, Dec. 5 (AP)—The Czechoslovak legation today announced Jan Masaryk had resigned as minister after 14 years service in the London legation both as counselor and as minister.

The resignation is effective January 1 when Masaryk, 52, son of the late Thomas G. Masaryk, Czechoslovakia's first president, will sail for the United States for a private visit.

On his return from America, the legation spokesman said Masaryk intends to live in England "for the time being."

Port Ewen Firemen Fight Fire on Old Ferryboat All Day

Hull of Old Thomas Powell Is Ablaze Sunday and Heat Is So Intense Approach Is Very Difficult

Robert Bready, 29, is shown as he sat in the Bainbridge, O., jail, being questioned in the fatal shooting of his father, Russell H. Bready, 62, Methodist minister, who was found dead near the parsonage.

The Port Ewen Fire Department, officers and men, got a real workout yesterday, when they fought fire in the hull of the old Thomas Powell, former Newburgh-Beacon ferryboat, all day. Lieut. Harry C. Jump said that it was around 6:15 in the morning when he drove the truck to the scene of the fire at Tucker's Point, where the Powell had been tied up since last summer, and it was about 5:30 when he called it a day. During that time the pumper registered "175 miles" of pumping and used up 25 gallons of gas.

The Powell was bought last summer by Michael Tucker and Aaron Katz, for dismantling. Katz had taken out boilers and other machinery and Tucker had been busy removing the woodwork. Most of the superstructure had been removed and it is understood that they were busy trying to remove some heavy iron work in the hull. Cause of the fire is believed to have been due to igniting of the heavy pine beams by sparks from the blow torch used.

The heat was so intense that it was almost impossible to get directly at the fire until after several hours it burned through the hull above the water line, when rowboats were used to allow the firemen to play streams through the openings made. Those working about the boat in the morning used gas masks.

The hull was practically destroyed, but a portion of the deck, consisting of two layers of three-inch planks, is still serviceable and a portion of the right side was not badly burned.

NLRB Has Power Over Firm Selling Outside of State

U. S. Supreme Court Decision Applies Specifically to Consolidated Edison Company of New York

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP)—The supreme court ruled today that the National Labor Relations Board has supervision over a company operating in only one state but which sells its products in other states engaged in interstate commerce.

This decision, applying specifically to the Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., gave broad power, attorneys said, to the labor board in administering the National Labor Relations Act. The opinion, delivered by Chief Justice Hughes, also held, however, that the labor board had exceeded its authority in directing abrogation of collective bargaining contracts between the company and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

The board had acted in the case on a complaint by the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America, a CIO affiliate. The latter contended Consolidated Edison had represented the employees in collective bargaining negotiations without giving the employees an opportunity to express a preference.

Consolidated Edison contended in arguments before the court it was not subject to the federal act because it operated entirely within New York state and was regulated there by state law.

The labor board replied that the company sold its product—electricity, gas and steam—to railroads, communications companies and other enterprises which operate beyond the confines of the state.

It was argued by the board that the federal act applied because a strike or other labor disturbance at Consolidated Edison might have a "catastrophic" effect on interstate commerce.

Finding the company guilty of "unfair labor practices," the board said it had "set in motion a vigorous campaign to intimidate, influence and coerce" its employees into joining the Federation Affiliates.

The board also told the court prior to its decision today that the company had employed industrial spies and had discharged six employees for union activity. Their reinstatement, with back pay, was ordered.

Hughes said in his ruling "It cannot be doubted" that the activities of Consolidated Edison, "while conducted within the state, are matters of federal concern."

Mooney Fails Again

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP)—Counsel for Thomas J. Mooney failed today in the Supreme Court in another move designed to free the California convict from San Quentin Penitentiary. He is serving a life sentence for complicity in the 1916 Preparedness Day parade bombing in San Francisco. The tribunal denied permission to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus intended to compel California officials to show that Mooney is rightfully held in prison.

TWO MEN ARE KILLED IN COUNTY ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK-END

Three Local Men Find Unidentified Body Along Tracks

Victim, Who Is Found South of Ulster Park Station, Believed to Have Been on Rails as Train Approaches

Study of Prints

Fingerprints Have Been Sent to U. S. Department of Justice for Identification

The body of an unidentified man apparently about 36 or 37 years old, was found along the West Shore Railroad tracks a couple miles south of the Ulster Park station Sunday morning by George Kuriger, Jesse Eckert of 491 Wilbur avenue, and Frank Humbert of 493 Wilbur avenue, who had been hunting in the locality.

Apparently the man had either been sitting on the railroad ties or walking along the easterly side of the right of way when a west bound train struck him. Marks on the right of way and the fact that his hat was found some 25 feet from the body indicated that he had been dragged along the tracks by the train.

Fingerprints Are Taken

Efforts to identify the man through fingerprints are being made. Deputy Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg, who with Sheriff Molyneux made an investigation, took fingerprints which were forwarded to the Department of Justice at Washington in the hope the man could be identified.

Meanwhile the body is being held at the morgue of Coroner Howard B. Humiston at Kerhonkson.

The three Kingston men had been hunting along the tracks back of the Lundeberg farm and had crossed to the tracks to walk toward Esopus when they discovered the body about four feet from the easterly tracks. They went to the Cameron farm and notified Sheriff Molyneux. Apparently the man had been struck during the night. The only thing found in his pockets was a book of matches from a Newburgh place which indicated the man had been traveling from the south. He was apparently a "drifter."

Extent of Injuries

An examination disclosed that he had suffered a compound fracture of the skull, his right arm was broken between the elbow and shoulder and he was otherwise cut and bruised. There were marks on the right of way indicating that the body had been dragged some distance and thrown to the side of the tracks. Apparently the man had been struck during the night and the body lay on the tracks until about 11 o'clock Sunday when the hunters made their discovery.

At the point where the body was found there are three tracks, the two main lines and the Esopus middle. This arrangement of the tracks may have confused the man in the driving rainstorm Saturday night and the train struck him as he walked along the tracks close to the rails.

Coroner Is Notified

Sheriff Molyneux notified Coroner Howard B. Humiston and also Sergeant E. J. Hulse at Highland and Troopers Hulse and Baker arrived later to assist in the investigation.

There were no papers or other means of identification although it was believed the man may have been an overnight lodger in the local jail the previous night. A (Continued on Page 12)

Flag and Bible Are Presented to New School

Boy Scout Donald Dumm, holds the silk American flag presented to the new Myron J. Michael School Thursday by the Charles DeWitt Council, No. 93, Jr. O. U. A. M. Col. Frank L. Meagher, principal of the school, stands in the center holding the Bible, also a present from the local organization. Edward N. Snow, who represented Charles DeWitt Council at the impressive ceremony, is on the right.

Almost 4,000 Persons Inspect New School Saturday and Sunday

Public Response Exceeds Anticipation of School Authorities—Col. Meagher and Faculty Members Conduct Visitors Throughout Building—County Folk Attend

Public response to the invitation of the Board of Education to inspect the Myron J. Michael school on Saturday and Sunday was far in excess of all expectations and the fact that between 3,000 and 4,000 people visited the building on Saturday and Sunday afternoon indicated that the people of Kingston take a real interest in the school system of the city.

The building, which was opened for school use shortly after the opening of the fall term, is the latest addition to the city's public school system and houses the students of the Eighth grade and the first year high school students. With a capacity of 850 students, the building has relieved congestion in all of the grade schools and also the high school.

Saturday afternoon and evening approximately 600 people visited the school and made a tour of inspection under guidance of the members of the faculty and student guides. Principal Frank L. Meagher acted as "host" and received the visitors.

The greatest crowd, however, came on Sunday afternoon, when approximately 3,000 people made an inspection. There was a constant stream of people in the building and as many as 600 people in the building at one time.

Parking space adjacent to the building was full and cars were lined up both sides of Andrew and O'Reilly streets, as well as in the parking grounds at the rear of the high school.

Saturday evening there was an "official" visit made by Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, Alderman-at-Large John J. Schwenk, City Engineer James Norton, Corporation Counsel John M. Cahill, Superintendent of Schools B. C. Van Ingen, members of the Board of Education and G. D. B. Hasbrouck who was a member of the board when the work was commenced, the architects, Teiler and Halverson, Hugh McCullough, who acted as clerk of the work, and Messrs. Bingel and Kingston, contractors.

The inspection was limited not only to local people but there were hundreds of out of town people who visited the building and expressed approval of the plant. Among the out of town people who visited the school were Mr. Terwilliger of Wallkill, where a centralized district is contemplating erection of a modern school plant, and Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn of Woodstock where for some time school improvements have been contemplated.

Assisting Col. Frank L. Meagher, principal, were members of the faculty, President Alfred Schmid of the board of education and other members of the board. Harry Halverson of the firm of Teiler & Halverson, architects, was also present to point out structural details, many of (Continued on Page 12)

John Cushner, 56, Napanoch Village, Hit While Cycling

Sam Waruch, 18, of Cherrytown Is Arrested by Troopers, Arraigned on Charge of Criminal Negligence

Autopsy Finding

Autopsy Ordered by Coroner Reveals Skull Fracture and Other Injuries

John Cushner, 56, native and lifelong resident of Napanoch, was killed about 7:10 Saturday night when he was struck by a car while riding a bicycle on Route 209, not far from the bridge over the Rondout creek at Napanoch.

Cushner had left his home, which is a short distance up the road, south of the bridge, and was said to have been on his way to Locombek Bros.' store in Napanoch. He had crossed the bridge and had gone but a short distance when he was struck.

His body was picked up about in the center of the east lane of the highway, according to Sergeant Hopkins and Trooper Batters, and Troopers Metzger and Reynolds of the B. C. L., who investigated the accident. It was carried over to the porch of the Wenig Hotel on the opposite corner near the bridge and Dr. Orrin M. Roberts of Ellenville was summoned, but Cushner was dead when he arrived.

Coroner Is Notified

Coroner Howard B. Humiston was notified and took the body to the undertaking parlor at Kerhonkson for a preliminary examination, following which it was turned over to Henry J. Bruck of this city.

An autopsy was performed by Drs. Taylor and Jacobson. They found a very severe compound fracture of the skull, with laceration of the brain, and a fracture of the left side of the body. Autopsy findings indicated that Cushner's injuries came from a blow on his left side, or from striking the pavement on that side.

Sam Waruch Held

Charged with being the driver of the car that caused Cushner's death, Sam Waruch, 18, of Cherrytown, was taken into custody and arraigned before Justice Melvin D. Schoonmaker on a charge of criminal negligence. After his statement had been taken he was paroled in the charge of his attorney, Herman J. Cohen, pending a hearing this morning.

Waruch's statement, according to the troopers, was that he was driving his Chevrolet coach from Kerhonkson to Ellenville, accompanied by his younger brother, Abraham Waruch. It was raining at the time, with the road inclined to be slippery. He said that there was another car ahead of him, which was being driven slowly in the same direction and he pulled out to pass it, but had not got past the car when he saw the wheel of a bicycle.

Waruch said that he pulled over to his left and his car left the road and struck the rail of a guard fence just north of the bridge. He said he had not believed that he hit the bicycle, but after striking the fence he got out of his car and saw Cushner lying in the road.

Victim Is Well Known

The deceased man was a well known and popular resident and business man of Napanoch. A knife-maker by trade, he was for many years associated with a number of other men in the business of the Napanoch Knife Co., which operated a factory in the former DuVall factory building on the road to Honk Falls. Following the burning of this building some years ago Cushner erected a shop at the rear of his residence property on the state road and had since continued the cutlery business there, at busy seasons employing a number of men.

He was accustomed to ride his (Continued on Page 12)

Legion Opposes All Dumping of Refugees

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 5 (AP)—The American Legion is opposed to making this nation an open dumping ground for refugees.

National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick said here in a speech.

Addressing the annual mid-winter conference of the Kentucky Department yesterday, Chadwick declared "while the Legion sympathizes with these oppressed people, it is opposed to admitting immigrants at this time because of our economic situation and the fact that many aliens already here have not been assimilated."

The Legion advocated complete stoppage of immigration for a ten-year period at its convention, Chadwick said.

Mrs. John Cahill Dies Early Today

Clinton Avenue Resident Suffers Heart Attack at 3 A. M. at Her Home

Mrs. Ellen T. Cahill, wife of John T. Cahill, prominent local attorney, and mother of City Judge Matthew V. Cahill, succumbed to a heart attack suffered at her home, 35 Clinton avenue, at 3 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Cahill apparently was in her usual good health upon retiring before midnight. She complained of being ill shortly after going to bed and members of her family immediately summoned a doctor, who upon his arrival found Mrs. Cahill in a critical condition. However, the heart condition that gripped her had been so severe that she failed to respond to medical aid.

Her husband, Attorney Cahill, has been confined to the Benedictine Hospital for over two months, and it is thought that the constant worry and anxiety over her husband's health brought about her sudden and fatal illness.

Mr. Cahill's physicians had planned to discharge him from the hospital today, however, the shocking news of Mrs. Cahill's sudden death has affected him deeply.

In addition to her husband and son, Judge Cahill, Mrs. Cahill leaves four sons, Edward F., of Springfield, Mass., Eugene A., of Kingston, and John T. Jr., of Kingston, and James F., of Richmondville, N. Y. two daughters, Mrs. Richard Von Arend, of New York city, and Mrs. Standhope Appelly, of Kingston, three sisters, Mrs. Adelaide Woerner and Mrs. Francis Boyle, of Kingston, and Sister Anita Marie, of St. Agnes Convent, New York city, and one brother, Edward Hoffman, of Kingston, and four grandchildren. Notice of funeral will appear later.

Death Toll in Accidents Mounts to 23 for County

Two deaths by motor vehicles over the week-end brought Ulster county's death by motor vehicles to 23 this year. This is 14 less than in 1932 when 37 met death in the result of motor vehicle accidents. Friday afternoon Thomas M. Flaherty of Elmhurst was killed at Milton and Saturday evening John Cushman of Napanoch was killed at Napanoch.

Beauty Ends Life

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—Gas ended the life of Mrs. Helen Ryan Cressman Carr, former Ziegfeld-follies beauty, as her estranged husband, Comedian Alexander Carr, searched for her. The body of the 35-year-old ex-show girl was found in the kitchen of her Riverside apartment yesterday. Detective Eugene Reilly listed the case as suicide. Carr, member of the old "Potash and Perlmutter" comedy team, said he had searched for his wife in the hope of a reconciliation and thought notice of his opening at a night club here would attract her attention.

Quakers to See Nazis

Philadelphia, Dec. 5 (AP)—A trio of Pennsylvania Quakers were bound for Germany today to plead with high Nazis on behalf of Jews and other persecuted minorities. The group was headed by a 75-year-old college professor, who helped feed destitute Germans after the World War. A report of the unusual mission was published in a copyright story in the Philadelphia Record and confirmed by John S. C. Harvey, of Philadelphia, a member of the American Friends Service Committee of the Society of Friends (Quakers).

Financial and Commercial

Prospects Seen as Good for Further Business Gains

News and activities of the past week, in the business and industrial world, seem to present about the normal picture of the course of events as the year draws to a close. There is evidently a slowing down of the autumn recovery, but prospects are seen as good for future business gains.

Stock prices edged off during the week, but changes in averages were small. In the closing session of the Stock Exchange Saturday, transactions totaled but 322,480 shares, with all classes of securities showing fractional losses. Industrials were off 0.07 point, to 147.50 in the Dow-Jones averages; rails lost 0.10 point, to 23.23 and utilities were off the same amount, closing at 21.83.

There was another small decline in steel production, which probably is not of special significance, and carloadings showed a seasonal drop. Automobile production continued at the high level of recent weeks and contracts for building construction still were on the increase as the government spending program moves forward. There is also some private building and plant expansion under way.

Of particular interest just now is the situation in the public utility field, with announcement last week that about all of the major companies had filed with the SEC plans, or outlines of plans for integration under the Public Utility Act of 1935. Commenting on this situation as an impressive instance of what "reasonable and competent men can do with bad legislation" one writer says, referring to section 11 of the act, "This, the 'death sentence' is wholly unnecessary to effective regulation; it could have been rendered extremely injurious to investors and might have become productive of gross abuses. It is such consequences are not yet quite impossible they have been rendered about as unlikely as the commission (the SEC) could make them. The records of the SEC and TVA, by the way, present as glaring a contrast as can be found in the voluminous record history of 'Administration' law. The root of the difference lies, not in the several statutes which respectively govern the two commissions, but in the personalities of their members."

A permanent cut in rates on eastern railroads from the present 3-cent rate to 2 1/2 cents a mile and Pullman rate of 3 cents is seen likely as the result of recent developments. Among them the low rates being offered World Fair travelers for round trips; cuts being allowed for holiday travel and the desire of southeastern roads for a low round trip through rate. It is stated that the higher rates allowed eastern roads by the ICC last summer did not produce the expected results, as passenger traffic fell off rapidly and substantially.

The anti-monopoly investigating committee will scrutinize the government's policies and their effect on general business. Chairman O'Mahoney announced today the committee begins a study of the operation of automobile patent pools. The chairman said that business already should be convinced that it has nothing to fear from the investigation.

The first world commodity price index on a weekly basis is being inaugurated today by General Motors in cooperation with Cornell University. The new index is based on 40 commodities, including grains, livestock and its products, metals and numerous other materials, such as rubber, hides, lumber, newspaper, flue oil, etc. Preliminary figures show that for the week ended November 26 the world index (in gold) stood at 60.4 as against 63.1 in the United States alone.

Contented Couple Have Two Additions to Family in Wandering Home.

ST. LOUIS.—For nine years now, "home" to Richard F. Vale and his family has been wherever they happened to park their trailer. They didn't park it often, however. They have, in those nine years, traveled in a motor home, a colored house on wheels, visited every state but Rhode Island, traveled 120,000 miles, and staked out a claim to the title of America's premier trailer family.

It all started back in the spring of 1924, when Vale, a college graduate, decided that manufacturing chemical by-products at Springfield, Mo., was too monotonous and too confining.

Started on Honeymoon.
With his bride a few months, Mildred, he set out in a trim 29-foot trailer he had built the year before.

Now there are four more traveling Vales: Dixie Jean, 7 years old; Richard Francis, 6; Betty Lou, 3; and William, 2. Betty Lou and William were born in the trailer, the others in hospitals at towns wherever the Vales happened to be "at home." None of the children has known any other home than the trailer.

But they are not discontented. The trailer is equipped with washing machine, shower, gasoline range, two radios, electric lights, a bed and a double-deck safety cot for the children.

Vale has a tiny workshop in the nose of the trailer, and a porch on which Joe, the family cat, can be out for the night.

Follow Their Fancy.

They are nomads, the Vales, and they visit places—as they did St. Louis—which happened to "strike their fancy." They thrive on an endless ribbon of open road unwinding before them.

"The gypsy life is in our blood," said Vale, "and we wouldn't spend a month in any place for less than a million dollars."

Vale's income from property in Springfield, Mo., provides funds for his wanderings. Next year he's going to build a two-story, 40-foot trailer. The upper story will be for the children and a schoolteacher who can take care of the duties now handled by Mrs. Vale.

Vale wonders why other people who can afford it don't follow his example.

"Who wouldn't, if he had a little money?" he asked, as he headed his romantic rolling home away from St. Louis.

'They're Wasting Time'

Manila, Dec. 5 (AP)—President Manuel L. Quezon said today he believed people, who are discussing possible changes in the present political independence program for the Philippines, are "wasting their time." A constitutional act of 1934 provided political independence for the islands July 4, 1946. The President, at a press conference, told reporters he was fully committed to the recommendations of the joint preparatory committee, including economic freedom beginning in 1961.

Might Avert Dismissals

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—Hopes of 12,500 metropolitan WPA workers to retain the jobs they are slated to lose the first of the year were raised today in the outcome of a conference between Mayor LaGuardia and Governor Lehman. A ruling by Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., that the state legally could increase its monthly relief grant to New York city bolstered belief a way would be found to avert the dismissals. Mayor LaGuardia said he would confer with the governor as soon as the latter returns from the west coast.

Many Animals Tamed;

Wild Cat Is Impossible

Man can tame almost any animal. There have been records of bats, porcupines, zebras, and even wild asses being tamed, while sea fish have been taught to come for food.

There remain however, a few animals upon which man spends his efforts in vain and which refuse to be tamed. The best-known instance is the wild cat. The British wild cat is definitely untamable, and this is the more strange because some closely allied species, such as the South African lynx, have been domesticated to some extent, and a writer in London Answers magazine.

The American bob cat, which is a lynx, is a creature which refuses to be tamed. Even kittens, taken when very young and brought up in captivity, are never safe to handle.

Of all the cat tribe the most utterly savage is a rather rare creature called the fossa, which belongs to Madagascar. The natives fear it above all other wild things, for its ferocity exceeds that of a leopard.

The various wild dogs are all untamable. These include the dhole of India and the spotted wild dog of South Africa. The dingo of Australia can be tamed, but this creature is believed to descend from the domesticated dog. It is a curse to the sheep farmer.

That huge weasel, the wolverine, is the strongest animal of its size in existence, and probably the most cunning. It is said to be quite beyond the power of man to tame, though specimens are to be seen in many zoological gardens.

Some wolves are tameable, but not the Patagonian variety. One more animal that can never be trusted is the hyena.

Ice Age Fossil Dug Up

The bone, measuring 3 feet in length and weighing approximately 15 pounds, was unearthed 25 feet underground on property owned by William H. Barber, who donated it to the University of Cincinnati.

According to university museum officials, the gravel pit from which the fossil was taken was laid down during the last of the glacial epochs of the Ice age.

Veterans' Groups Plan Organization For Memorial Day

On Thursday evening, December 1, there gathered at the home of Harry Karnaghan, 116 Pearl street, committees from the different organizations interested in the perpetuation of Memorial Day to form a permanent association for this purpose. The organizations represented were Tappan Camp No. 1, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War; Colonial Camp No. 75, United Spanish War Veterans; Joyce-Schirick Post No. 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Kingston Post No. 150, American Legion; Squadron No. 150, Sons of America.

At the meeting there were 12 representatives and they approved adopted articles of association and by-laws which had been drawn up by a representative of each of these organizations. These articles were patterned after a similar association, which has been the main instrument in looking after Memorial Day observance in Bridgeport, Conn., and presented by James M. Krom, of Tappan Camp. They had been laid before each organization represented and accepted by them at their own organization meeting.

The name of this new set-up will be called "The United Veterans Association Incorporated, of Kingston, N. Y." Article No. 2 reads as follows: "The purpose for which it is organized are: to perpetuate Memorial Day; to cause to be annually decorated the graves of those who have worn the uniform of the nation; to inspire the preservation of the history and the relics and mementos of the wars in which the United States has engaged; and to promote cooperation between the various organizations comprising this association."

This plan has been in the minds of the different organizations for the past six years, but it has only come to its realization at this moment and the association will take the place of the general Memorial Day committee which has been functioning in the past, yet it was brought to its present form and carried out by the same committee.

The association will consist of 15 duly elected members, three from each organization. It will present the honorary organization, but the thought behind the whole movement is to carry out the noble work that they started and performed faithfully for so many years. The every wish of the post, as expressed by the remaining two members, will be carried out by their junior organization, namely, Tappan Camp, and the rest of the members of the association.

The officers of this new association as elected at the meeting are: Chairman, Harry Karnaghan; vice chairman, Roswell Coles; secretary, James M. Krom; treasurer, John L. Greene; executive committee, Roswell Coles, John Melville, Peter J. Halloran, Edward J. Wortman, Roy Jacob and William Murray. The whole membership of the association and the organizations they represent is as follows:

Tappan Camp No. 1, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War; James M. Krom, John Melville, Joy S. Rosa.

Colonial Camp No. 75, United Spanish War Veterans: Roswell Coles, George A. Winter, Peter J. Halloran.

Joyce-Schirick Post No. 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars: George H. Decker, John L. Greene, Edward J. Wortman.

Kingston Post No. 150, American Legion: Roy Jacob, Edward Hillis, Harry Karnaghan.

Squadron No. 150, Sons of American Legion: William Murray, Donald Jacob, John Robertson.

There was a good attendance of members of the Masonic fraternity at the meeting at the Lodge rooms of Kingston Lodge No. 10, Friday night, when Masons from five counties gathered for a meeting which took the nature of a forum discussion.

Grand Lodge officers present included, Dana B. Hellings, grand master of Masons of New York state, who gave a fine address at the conclusion of the discussion of several subjects of importance to the fraternity.

The Grand Master and other grand officers, with a number of local officers and district deputies, had dinner at the Governor Clinton Hotel preceding the meeting.

PORT EWEN NEWS

Speaks at Reformed Church

Port Ewen, Dec. 5.—A capacity congregation filled the Reformed Church last evening to participate in the "old-fashioned hymn sing" and hear the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the First Dutch Church of Kingston, tell of his experiences and impressions of Mexico. The first half hour of the service was devoted to the singing of old hymns and request hymns. These were accompanied by William A. Vanderveer on the organ. The choir sang the anthem, "Praise Ye the Father." There were groups present from St. Remy, Ulster Park and Kingston as well as members of both local churches. These evening services have been very worthwhile and well received. The next one will be held Christmas night, December 25, and will be a carol service by the choir under the direction of Miss Eva Clinton.

AUTO MEMORIAL DAY

The city of Cleveland is starting a memorial ceremony that must seem strange and moving to those who see it. It is held for 15 minutes on Saturday morning, on the Public Square—the busiest place in the city and the busiest time of the week.

The rites are conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in cooperation with the Police Department. A clergyman officiates. The drum and bugle corps of the war veterans plays taps and a high school band plays appropriate music. A platoon of mounted policemen stands at attention while the mayor of the city reads a tribute to the dead. A member of the family of every victim places a wreath at the foot of an obelisk erected as a "Memorial to the 112 Who Died." That is the number of traffic deaths this year. Then throughout the day the flags on the Public Square, at the Central Police Station and at the 37 posts of the veterans of Foreign Wars fly at half mast.

Flags are flown likewise at half mast by business houses and private homes all over the city, and all the churches toll their bells at the end of the quarter-hour ceremony. It is easy to imagine people all over the city counting as the bells toll—one, two, three, and so on slowly up to 112. Then an Emergency Committee of a Million assumes its duty of bettering that sad record next year.

It seems like a wise innovation, which should spread to many cities.

LIGHTED PEDESTRIANS

The attorney general of Ontario is searching the law for authority to require pedestrians to go about at night all lit up, not with liquor but with electric lights attached to vest pocket batteries. It is a safety measure which, if adopted there, may soon spread to this side of the border.

It wouldn't be the first time in history that pedestrians carried lights. Lanterns used to be necessary not only because there was no street lighting, but also because there were no pavements, and the person afoot after dark had to watch out for holes, puddles and obstructions.

Today city streets are lighted, and pedestrians have sidewalks and marked and protected crosswalks. In the small towns and on the open highway there may be more need for walking on the street at night, and consequently need for carrying or wearing something to indicate one's presence to motorists.

But the vest pocket battery seems awkward. Colored reflectors or white capes or some other device may prove more satisfactory.

Broadly speaking, the world seems to be settling down to a test of endurance between democracy and paranoia.

PRAISE FROM AN EXPERT

It is pleasant, of course, to be praised. We Americans are especially susceptible to flattery. Especially from beautiful women like Baroness Eugene de Rothschild, friend of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, and formerly Catherine Wolf of Philadelphia. Arriving in America, she says:

"Do you realize that one never sees an ugly woman in New York? Every woman I see is so fresh and young and beautiful. Europe seems so old. America is so vital and electric. It is like an eighteen-year-old youth, just at the beginning of its life."

She adds that Edward's duchess is in very good health, and grows more beautiful every day, and "her chic is something to wonder at."

THESE YOUNG PEOPLE

"The children of today are as fine, if not finer, than those of previous generations," says President A. D. Henderson of Antioch College, a unique institution in Ohio whose students spend half their time earning their own living. But "they lack training for life, and particularly for citizenship in a democracy."

By the usual "mass education" system, the children tend to lose their individuality, initiative and self-reliance. The young people should be trained, he insists, not only to make a living, but for effective citizenship, and to this end they should have first-hand experience in governmental problems.

They cannot develop into free Americans, he adds, if they are sheltered from a knowledge of socialism, communism, and so on. They should know about the "isms" in order, by contrast, to understand their democracy and appreciate it.

It would probably bring the French people to their senses if Hitler started to annex France. And he may try that very thing, if strikes and political confusion continue much longer.

Ambassadors nowadays are always flying around in airplanes. The diplomatic service has speeded up since Bill Bullitt was first shot to Moscow.

Another columnist is slipping. Pegler says he "finds himself growing more and more reasonable day by day."

Snow White and her seven little friends seem to have become Santa Claus' assistants this year.

Utopia must be dawning in France. Premier Daladier pledges a "union of all classes."

Why wait for prosperity to round that corner? Go and meet it on the other street.

It's queer that no feminine hat designer seems to have thought of a sundial.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

 INJECTING BLOOD IN RHEUMATISM.

Although it is generally agreed that the majority of cases of rheumatism are due to infection—teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder—and that many are due to dampness, to climate, to errors in diet, there is also the belief that there is a "tendency" to rheumatism in some families. It may be that this tendency is due to the fact that the individual is allergic or sensitive to certain substances, just as the tendency to hay fever, asthma and eczema complex seem to pass down from parent to children.

That the results obtained by a new method of treating rheumatism are due to this sensitivity or allergy seems logical.

Dr. J. McCalve, in Medical Press, Paris, states that injecting the rheumatic patient's blood back into him causes a mild shock which the patient withstands well, increases his resistance to further attacks of rheumatism, stimulates the circulation, and desensitizes the body against the substance causing the attacks.

The injection of his own blood has a calming effect upon the pains, especially if the injection of his blood is made directly into the painful part. The injections open up the bloodvessels, slightly increase the pulse, reduce tension in muscles, and speed up the nerves.

In a number of cases Dr. McCalve injected sulphurated oil, and also the blood, and in others the sulphurated oil alone was injected. In forty-two cases he found that the combination of the blood and the sulphurated oil produced better results than did the injection of the oil alone, but he also obtained several cures by the injection of the blood alone. One or two injections of 20 or 45 drops of the patient's blood are injected into the painful spots and into the bloodvessels.

"It appears that the action of the injected blood, particularly its plasma relieving action, is due to the fact that it promotes the pressure of histamine or similar substance in the blood. As the injected blood gets mixed very slowly with the patient's blood, the relief of symptoms lasts for a long time."

As you know, the idea of curing or preventing disease by injecting small quantities of the substances causing the disease is used in a great many ailments—smallpox, hay fever, asthma, and others.

Chapter 27

Crushed By A Stone

"Do you suppose I care what you do with your second-hand typewriter?" I stormed. "But you didn't need to keep writing to me on it. Give you a good excuse to run in and see her, didn't it? Did she lean over your shoulder and tell you what to say? Or did she take it down in shorthand and type it for your signature?"

There may have been more of it, but it must go unreported, all but my concluding remark, which was a prelude to action.

"Well, here's your secondhand ring! See who you can get to take that off your hands!"

And I flung it as hard as I could at his face. He ducked instinctively, and the little yellow-gold circle, its one eye winking malevolently, sailed past him.

"That," he said furiously, "is about the lowest thing I ever knew a woman to do."

Something warned me to concede him the last word, and I knelt, wailing, effecting a careless exit. Halfway down the stairs, I heard the door slam shatteringly.

Adam was standing in the downstairs hall, head bent, thinking deeply. The slam of the door roused him, but he overlooked its significance.

"Hullo! You're looking better. Do you mind waiting a minute longer? It's disgraceful to keep you out like this, but there's a sentry coming and I don't want to miss him."

"A sentry—Adam, there was one in front of the club. I forgot all about him!"

"That's the man—so did I. I've been cursing him for weeks. Wonder what he's doing now?"

He's been relieved and he telephoned that he might have some information about a cat, he said. Do you want to wait in the car or would you like to listen?"

"I'll stay if you don't mind."

"Stay by all means. It won't take a moment—here he comes now."

He stepped forward to the open door.

The soldier was young and fresh faced—a country boy, by the look of him. He saluted snappily, stepped inside and took off his broad-brimmed campaign hat.

"It was about a cat, sir," he began.

"Yes?"

"I'd not like to make trouble for anybody," he said nervously. "Especially such a nice young lady."

And I wouldn't want the major to think I was suggesting anything like that. Only it's just something I was in a way to see, and the major being in charge of the in-major about the poor young lady being killed I remembered about the cat and thought the major ought to know about that."

"About That Balloon"

"CERTAINLY. It's your duty to report anything you saw that was out of the way."

"Well, sir, it wasn't out of the way, exactly. Only coming when it did."

"Suppose you begin at the beginning," Adam suggested patiently.

"Yes, sir."

The boy straightened, began rapidly in an official drone to relate that he had been walking his post, which included the section of road in front of the Service Club.

"Time?"

"Just after Taps, sir. I was in front of the Post Exchange at Taps, proceeding in the direction of the Service Club. I was abreast of the chapel when I saw Lieutenant Nelson draw up and take the young lady back to the dance."

"Miss Carver?"

"Yes, sir. The little one. I proceeded along past the club and down to the corner near the Officers' Club, where I turned back. I was then aware of a car approaching in a queer manner, sort of zigzagging back and forth across the road, as you might say. As it passed in front of the club there was a loud report like a backfire."

"The car came on toward you?"

"Yes, sir, and I took proper note of it as it passed. I was almost sure it was, sir, by the driving. Sure enough, it was Miss Wright's car."

"How long was that after you saw Lieutenant Nelson and Miss Carver enter the club?"

"Not more than five minutes. The time was right. And Mrs. Orpington would swear the car was passing when she heard the shot. But how much chance was there for such a shot to find its mark—a moving target, a moving car?"

There was Adam's theory, too, that the shot had not found its mark—that it had been intended for Barney....

Adam was looking over it again with the man, going for loopholes. Was the car window down next to the curb?

The sentry couldn't be sure about that, but he thought so. He was looking more and more unhappy.

Adam said understandingly, "I won't mention this unless I have to." On the verge of dismissing the man, he put another question at random.

"You didn't notice anything else that struck you as out of the way?"

There was something. You could see him remembering, turning it over in his mind, wondering if it was worth telling.

Well, sir, now you mention it. It was just a silly thing—it was about that balloon....

He might not have paused there, but the hat got away from him and rolled over in front of the open door. A little red in the face, he retrieved it.

"What balloon?" Adam asked sharply, his voice louder with sudden excitement.

"Why, sir, there was a balloon—"

It wasn't the end of a sentence, even of a phrase. The voice cut off in mid-flight, like an interrupted radio program. Only, instead of the familiar click of the switch, there was an ominous, dull crack like the shell of a hickory nut crushed by a stone.

A stone! There was a stone—round, smooth, as big as an orange. It bounced at my feet an instant before the country boy pitched on his face.

"Don't Touch It"

UNCOMPREHENDING, I stooped to pick it up.

Adam cried, "Don't touch it!" and was gone through the open door, calling something in a loud, official voice. And presently I heard heavy feet pounding nearer and quick sharp voices of men.

I forced myself to kneel down and touch the outlying hand. I tried to find the pulse, and once I thought I felt it fluttering; but I couldn't be sure, for my own veins were hammering loudly.

There was blood on the back of his head where the stone had struck. I remembered the sickening sound of the impact and realized that the skull was fractured. Even if he were still alive he would lie for days, perhaps weeks in a coma.

I rose and retreated from him until I could feel the solid, reassuring wall at my back.

Adam came in, flushed, panting, savage looking.

"Get away," he explained bitterly. "I don't want to see you. I thought I felt it fluttering; but I couldn't be sure, for my own veins were hammering loudly."

"Get away," he explained bitterly. "I don't want to see you. I thought I felt it fluttering; but I couldn't be sure, for my own veins were hammering loudly."

There was blood on the back of his head where the stone had struck. I remembered the sickening sound of the impact and realized that the skull was fractured. Even if he were still alive he would lie for days, perhaps weeks in a coma.

I rose and retreated from him until I could feel the solid, reassuring wall at my back.

Adam came in, flushed, panting, savage looking.

He Arrives

"HELLO, hello, hello," cried a cheery voice.

"Hello, Santa Claus," shouted Willy Nilly, Top Notch, Christopher, Rip, and the ducks and Sweet Face, the lamb.

And at that very moment Santa Claus stood before them.

"Where are your sleigh?" asked Willy Nilly.

"Not far off," answered Santa Claus. "There wasn't quite enough snow here so I left them just beyond the woods and walked over. But I've brought a snow storm along with me."

It was now snowing much harder.

"Won't you come inside?" Willy Nilly asked.

"Yes indeed," answered Santa Claus. "but of course I haven't very much time. I am now rushing to have it seen this year."

"Have you all been well?" Has everything been fine?" Santa asked, and the Puddle Muddlers all nodded their heads. They were thinking what a wonderful voice Santa had. It seemed to make them feel full of added energy and life and happiness and gaiety. It was as though, when they heard him, they felt refreshed and all aglow, too.

They all trooped into Willy Nilly's house.

"What may we do to help you?" Willy Nilly asked.

"Ah," smiled Santa Claus. "I was hoping you would ask that very question."

"Then let us know what we may do and we'll get started at once on whatever it is," Willy Nilly said.

Tomorrow—"Meal for Santa."

Liquor Authority Asks For Better Facilities

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 5 (AP)—To curb a temptation to excessive drinking, the New York State Liquor Authority asked today for better recreational facilities throughout the state.

On the fifth anniversary of the repeal of the 18th Amendment, the authority announced results of a survey which disclosed a "definite link" between poor recreational facilities and drinking.

Commissioner Henry E. Bruckman, chairman of the authority, urged a "complete study of recreational needs and opportunities of the state."

Opinions, he added, were gathered for recreation authorities and home demonstration agents engaged in extension work by the state. The consensus was that in most rural communities the recreational facilities lag behind those in urban centers.

ALF WATCHES SHUFFLIN' CORDELL

Secretary of State Cordell Hull was shuffling along at a little game of shuffleboard with former Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas (right) when this picture was made on board the Santa Clara, which is taking the United States delegation to the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru. The man on left, background, is unidentified. President Roosevelt's cabinet member and his one-time opponent for the presidency have struck up a shipboard companionship. Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—This was too bad! At a big Park avenue wedding last Saturday the bridesmaids' dresses failed to show up and the bridesmaids had to march down the aisle in street clothes, trailed by a bride-in-white who wore her mother's lace-and-batiste wedding gown.

The wedding was held at St. Bartholomew's church, in the city. There were hundreds of guests. Outside a stream of chauffeur-driven cars awaited the bride party. So did half a dozen society photographers, and hundreds of passers-by.

The ceremony was scheduled for 4:30. At 5:40 the bridesmaids, who had been nudged in the maid of honor's apartment, struggled up the church steps in everything from wool sports costumes to black daytime frocks. But the bride's mother insisted on the full wedding party—so they went through it, carrying a tremendous sheaf of rubrum lilies.

Whose fault was it? Why, the bride's, and hers alone. Twice she defied superstition. First, she heeded her own wedding. Then she saw the groom on her wedding day, which is invariably fatal.

What a pity.

It seems strange that comedy of the horse and buggy variety clicks the heaviest on Broadway today. But this is true. The Olson and Johnson clowning in the sell-out "Hillzapoppin'" is ancient, wheezy and threadbare, but it is delivered in a rip-snorting style that defies critical opinion.

Love might get you a seat but money can't. They're all sold out. Then only today I was watching a comedian (?) rehearse with an orchestra and this is the stuff that made up the act.

"When I come out on the stage," he told the boys, "I'll have a gun with me, and I'll take a shot at a flock of birds. But a fish falls out of the air and hits me."

This was greeted by a shout of approval.

"THEN I'll get tired of shooting and take up golf, but when I swing the club it will wrap around my neck (Harry Lauder did this 35 years ago) and when this happens I'll yell 'Fore' and then you guys all yell 'five-six-seven.' That always kills 'em. That says 'em in the aisles. Then I'll lean over to pick up another club, and you guys all throw golf balls at me, and everytime you hit me in the pants the drummer will pound on the bass drum."

This went on for 35 minutes. I mean, it was going on when I arrived, and it hadn't ended when I left, 35 minutes later. And when the act his Broadway next week it will be big. This comedian (?) never fails.

West Shokan, Dec. 5.—Shokan I. O. O. F. Lodge will hold an open meeting Saturday evening following a brief business session. All are requested to bring a non-member friend. Refreshments will be served and a social program enjoyed.

The Olive Town Board members held their monthly business meeting, Thursday morning at the Olive Bridge I. O. O. F. hall.

Mrs. Katherine D. Boice, Mrs. Ida Steen and Ex-Sergeant and Mrs. Jack Darling, prominent Winchell District residents, motored to Kingston, Wednesday.

There was a three-hog butchering at Maple Dell Farm on Monday. David Bender and Jesse assisted. One of the husky porkers was a 400 pounder.

An especially enjoyed feature was the serving of a hot noon-day luncheon. Members answering roll call were: Mrs. Addie Van Deman, presiding, Mrs. Idella North, Mrs. Alice Bell, Mrs. Addie Breunhant, Mrs. Florence Bell, Mrs. Belle Burgher, Mrs. Mary Hyde, Mrs. Panny Boice, Mrs. Mattie C. Davis.

The Chesapeake Bay Retriever. There are several interesting characteristics of the Chesapeake Bay retriever. The most prominent is the dead grass color of these dogs. This may vary from a very straw color to a dull brown. Very noticeable is the eye color of these dogs, which is a marked, light amber. In most breeds it would be considered too light, yet it is a standard color of this breed. Strangely enough, all the puppies have brilliant blue eyes until they are six weeks old or older. There's no record of any other breed in which this transition of eye color takes place. The quality of the Chesapeake's coat would seem to indicate some admixture of poodle blood. It is very dense and water resistant with a very frequent tendency to curliness, which is considered a fault in the Chesapeake standard. However, this curliness crops out with extreme frequency in the best litters.

The tragedy is that so many have ambition and so few have ability.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—The lady off to the side of the house muttering to the screen at any Joan Crawford preview is—Joan Crawford.

"I make a nuisance of myself. I talk to myself on the screen all the time. Mostly I'm saying, 'O, you fool! Why did you do it that way? How could you have thought that was the way to play the scene?' I'm one of those horrible people that others sitting nearby have to shush."

Thus Miss Crawford, on a day between scenes of one picture, preparing for the ordeal of attending the preview of a finished one. She is sitting on a movie bed in an unoccupied set, and she's knitting.

Once in a while, too, and more frequently, she raises herself and gets into the scene where Reinhold Schunzel (they call him Papa) is directing her and James Stewart and Lew Ayres in "Ice Follies."

JOAN has been gay all morning, singing a little in that new voice of hers—and good, too, and laughing a lot with the others at the things that go wrong. This scene has been carried over the threshold of the room by Stewart, whom she's just married at Yuma, and it shows how Ayres, Stewart's ice partner, takes it.

By afternoon, when they've done that scene in long shots and close-ups at least a dozen times, with rehearsals extra, I get to thinking innocently that those making scenes like that—well, not exactly—for 13 years now.

"Well, no," says Joan. "I love making pictures—they're something alive and vital—and this is all part of making pictures. May be if I hadn't grown up in it, I'd go mad. Anyway, knitting helps between takes. Can't read on the screen takes my mind off my work. I get that in Sundays..."

At 30, Joan has a new 7-year contract, without options—and that makes her different from all the other stars who try for comebacks. They don't have contracts.

Her singing—which won her the new term deal—is going to be heard in "Ice Follies." Just popular numbers, no operatic stuff.

The opera business will have to wait a while. (I practice every morning, but I haven't enough time really to give to it yet.)

In "The Shining Hour" Joan was cast with Margaret Sullivan. Hollywood expected a conflagration of temperaments. Just wait (said Hollywood) until THOSE TWO get together.

"We disappointed them," says Joan. "We met, and hit it off together from the start."

'Ad' Elicits Praise. Local business men and managers of some of the chain stores have praised the Rabin's advertisement appearing in the Friday issue of The Freeman.

Flashes of Life

Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Strange Courtship. St. Louis—A Malayan gavi— or crocodile—at the St. Louis zoo is winning himself a mate through sheer laziness.

The savai's inactivity annoys zoo visitors. To make him move, they toss pennies and sales tax tokens into his pool. These are periodically scooped out.

Zoo Director George P. Vierheller said that when enough money is accumulated, a mate will be bought.

The truck ran out of gasoline and left Santa stranded. He arrived late at the courthouse to lot down kiddies' Yuletide requests.

Leap to Love. Los Angeles—The 30-foot leap of Oliver Titchenal, 18-year-old aircraft mechanic, from a bridge into the dry Los Angeles river had stamped a happy ending on a California love story.

Titchenal told detectives he had sought to end his life—he had quarreled with his sweetheart. The fall did not end his life— brought reconciliation with his sweetheart.

Add Embarrassing Moments. San Francisco—Jack Wessendorf went to Taraval police station to report his automobile had disappeared from its parking place on top of a hill.

Officers had informed him the car had been located. It had stopped its brakes, rolled down hill and crashed—into the police station.

James Waterman Wise
The first of the public forums sponsored by the Temple Emanuel Men's Club and the Kingston Youth Alliance, for the season of 1938-1939, will be given at Temple Emanuel, Abel street, this evening at 8:15 o'clock. These lectures are open to the public.

The speaker (this evening) will be James Waterman Wise, who will speak on "Will Democracy Survive?" Mr. Wise is one of thousands of young American Jews who has felt the stress and uncertainty of the present era and instead of clinging to the age-old traditions that has bound the Jews for centuries, has recognized the need for a more universal outlook unlimited by the bounds of religion and creed. His case is particularly outstanding because he is the son of a very famous father, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, and as a youth started to follow in his father's footsteps, studying for the rabbinate. His revolt against the shackles that necessarily accompany an intense devotion to any religion, his realization that youth today needs more than the comforting but narrow aspect that religion provides, and his determination to follow his ideals and investigate all the new and liberal trends that have arisen with the breakdown of the present order were extraordinary feats in the face of his environment and upbringing.

James Waterman Wise has traveled, written, lectured and lent support to all new movements that he has felt worthy of interest and aid. With his background of travel and receiving first hand information, he is considered a foremost authority on conditions throughout the world.

Perfect Steps at Home

Follow Easy Instructions

No eager dancer from the stage line's going to cut in on droopy, dead-weight Jane.

Though goodness knows she'd like to be rescued from Jim's back-breaking clutch and monotonous walk, walk, walk!

A shame too—for in no time at all, with home practice, both would shine at dances.

Jane would learn to keep her hips firmly under her body, her weight forward on the balls of her feet. She'd be relaxed—but not a burden on her partner. And Jane would take long backward steps so the men wouldn't tramp on her toes.

Jim ought to hold his partner firmly but lightly, his right hand under her left shoulder blade. He can lead smoothly with a turn of his shoulders, a pressure of his arm or hand.

Easy to zip into the smart dance steps when posture's correct—and you've footprint diagrams showing how to place your feet.

Our 32-page booklet gives step-by-step instructions and diagrams for the lovely waltz, popular tango and rumba, the smart Westchester, fox-trot and shag. Shows you how to be a popular partner.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of HOME DANCES to the Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

PERFECT FOR WINTER GAYETIES!

MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9914

Of course your plans for the gala New Year include the wearing of chic, easily-made frocks like this! Marian Martin gave a lot of thought to Pattern 9914 so that it would be as pleasant to stitch up as it is to own. Note the slenderizing power of the decorative, full-length paneling (your own ingenuity may suggest color of fabric contrast here). There's glamour in the shirtings holding in the exquisite softness of the "dram" bodice and skirt and charm, too, in the new high-at-sides neckline! Why not use semi-sheer wools for the gracious, long-sleeved skirt and especially for the shirtings for the gay, short-sleeved style? You'll adore both, and find them extremely useful all winter long—as well as when spring's lovely, balmy days arrive!

Pattern 9914 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 18 requires 3 3/4 yards 39" fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coin for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

Watch for the MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN FEATURE every day in this paper! You'll find the very newest styles you've been wanting—original designs created by Marian Martin and especially for you! So simple that even a beginner can succeed with them, these patterns are noted for their size-accuracy and their perfect fit! Moreover, the easy-to-follow sheet of instructions with every pattern takes the guesswork out of all dressmaking details.

Sunday night the Jewels made it six wins on their slate by trouncing Wilkes-Barre, and in the afternoon the Jersey Reds edged out the Colonials 26-24, mainly because the boys of Barney Sedan were off on their foul shots.

Alabama Leads Nation's Elevens

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—Despite what amounted to a "disastrous" season for Alabama—one defeat and one tie—the Crimson Tide once more leads the nation's major football teams in the Associated Press' annual survey of gridiron records for the last five years.

The Tide boasts only a slight margin over two eastern powers, Pittsburgh and Holy Cross, which are tied for second place with percentages of .859. Pitt and Holy Cross have compiled identical five-year records of 40 victories, five defeats and four ties.

Minnesota, second to Alabama in the 1937 compilation, drops back into fourth position this time as a result of defeats by Northwestern and Notre Dame.

The Gophers' percentage fell to .875. Duke's undefeated, untied and undefeated record in 1937, which placed him in seventh place, just ahead of North Carolina, which vaulted from 18th to sixth position.

Packers or Giants Champs

Chicago, Dec. 5 (AP)—A new professional football champion will be crowned next Sunday in New York and it will be either the touchdown-stingy New York Giants or the high-scoring Green Bay Packers.

The lineup for the title battle was definitely decided yesterday. The Giants completely crushed the Washington Redskins in a 1937 champions to capture Eastern Division honors. The Detroit Lions, Green Bay's only threat in the Western Division, dropped a 21 to 7 decision to the lowly Philadelphia Eagles and eliminated the possibility of a playoff with the Packers.

A crowd of 57,461, largest New York audience since Red Grange made his pro debut 15 years ago, watched the relentless attack which carried the Giants to a 36 to 0 rout of the Redskins.

This game, the Detroit-Philadelphia tilt and Cleveland's 13-7 victory over Pittsburgh completed the league's regular season of play.

National Sports Week Planned

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP)—A determination to win a better public understanding of its function guided the Amateur Athletic Union today at the start of its second half-century of control over the country's amateur sports.

The keynote for this attitude was furnished by a committee report submitted to the Union's Convention, which closed yesterday.

Presented by F. Marvin Plake of St. Louis, Chairman of the Publicity Committee, it urged that the 41 district associations "cooperate more closely with the newspapers and let current issues be discussed freely and above table."

Plake's report followed closely the appointment of a committee charged with the task of planning a national sports week.

The Publicity Committee also proposed a nationwide sports educational program, designed to develop "thousands of 10.5 century men instead of a hundred 9.7 sprint stars," and a campaign to publicize the history of the Olympic games.

A number of delegates, notably American Olympic Association President Avery Brundage of Chicago, and Judge Samuel E. Hoyt of New Haven, Conn., rejected to the A. A. U. presidency, will attend a meeting of the American Olympic Committee in New York tonight.

Fights Again
Cleveland, Dec. 5 (AP)—Busy Henry Armstrong tonight defends his welterweight boxing championship for the second time in two weeks when he meets Californian Al Nanfredo in the top bout of the annual Cleveland News Christmas Charity Fund show.

The Bike Champ
Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 5 (AP)—Gustav Kilian jauntily wore the United States six-day bike racing crown today. After the all-German team of Kilian and Heinz Vopel won 13 of 15 races in the United States and gave receipts dwindled steadily with the lack of competition, bike moguls broke up the team "for the good of the game." But last night Kilian wrecked this well laid plan by riding to his 14th victory in the international six-day bike races here with a new partner, young Bobby Thomas, of Kenosha, Wis.

Whooping Cough Still Is Prevalent

Whooping cough is still prevalent in Kingston, according to Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer. During November there were 78 cases reported. Many of the cases were in the same families.

Dr. Sanford is still holding twice a week clinics at the city hall where children who have whooping cough, or who have been exposed to it are receiving treatment.

There were 10 cases of scarlet fever reported in Kingston during November.

Must Wear 'Civies'

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP)—New war department regulations decreed today that the entire army, aside from cavalry and artillery horsemen, must don civilian-type trousers by February 1. The substitution began last year with the air corps. There were not trousers enough to go around then, but officials said there now are plenty to provide each man with two pairs of woolen ones and three of cotton khaki. Tan instead of white cotton socks will be worn.

Fire in Tree

Sunday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock a fire in a hollow tree near Montrose cemetery was the cause of the fire department being called out on a still alarm. Firemen were forced to cut down the tree to extinguish the blaze. It is believed the fire was started by some children.

Pickets Remain At Fisher Plant

No Work Done Pending Ratification of Strike Settlement at Plant

Flint, Mich., Dec. 5 (AP)—Pickets remained on duty today at Fisher Body plant No. 1 and no work was done pending ratification by union members of a strike settlement reached last night by international officers of the United Auto Workers and the management of General Motors Corp.

From Detroit came word that the settlement would be submitted at a union meeting here tonight, and it was assumed that the Fisher Body plant would be reopened Tuesday morning.

About 6,400 workers were involved in the strike, but 3,000 workers at the Buick plant, dependent on Fisher for bodies, were sent home last week. The Buick men returned to their jobs today.

The strike began Friday. Terms of the settlement were not disclosed. President Homer Martin of the UAW said, however, that the strike was due to a "misunderstanding."

Martin, in announcing authorization of the strike Saturday, said the UAW had been unable to obtain satisfactory consideration through grievance procedure of its demand that day pieces of pay be substituted for piecework in certain Fisher departments. General Motors denied that the grievance procedure provided in the GM-UAW agreement had been exhausted and asserted that the strike violated the agreement.

"The hardest part of all," said One Shot Lawrence, "was dragging it alone for a distance of about a mile back to the car." By 8:30 o'clock Ted was on his way back to Kingston with his prize.

Ship Named 'America'

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—The new $15,733,000 flagship of the U. S. Lines' transatlantic fleet has been named "America." The 30,000-ton liner, largest ever built in the United States, is under construction at Newport News, Va. John M. Franklin, president of the U. S. Lines, said thousands of letters had been received suggesting names for the liner, which is scheduled to enter service between New York and Europe in 1940.

Britain Mining Gold

London (AP)—Gold mining is being developed in the North-Western area of England. During 1937, 787 tons of gold ore (dressed) were produced at $2,080, compared with 6 tons in 1936 valued at $25.

Pay Levels Studied

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—A nine-member wage board began studying today a report of pay levels in the cleaning and dyeing industry along with working conditions of women and minors in that trade. The report, which termed wages "extremely low," was placed before the board by Frieda S. Miller, state industrial commissioner. The board, which consists of three representatives each of the public, employers and employees, has 60 days in which to make recommendations to the commissioner.

Clock At 160, Still Good

Wynot, Neb. (AP)—A grandfather clock made in Germany 160 years ago and believed to be the oldest of its type in America, is owned by Mrs. R. R. Seagood. It has not missed a day of perfect performance.

HOW BERLIN WILL RESTRICT JEWS

This map of central Berlin shows clearly defined districts (indicated by diagonally-lined area) which will be forbidden to German Jews, effective December 6, unless they bear special police permits good for only 12 hours. Large arrows denote the contemplated movement of Jews from the fashionable West Side Tiergarten district (dotted area) to a sort of ghetto planned on the north side along Linien and Grenadier streets. They will be banned also from public buildings, including the group indicated. Black-domed buildings are synagogues fired by Nazis in the November 10 disorders following the Vom Rath assassination in Paris.

Almost 4,000 See Michael School

which were of great interest to the visitors.

One of the outstanding points of interest was the combination gym and auditorium. Here is laid out a basketball court, two volley ball courts and a shuffle board. The size of the stage with its complete equipment of footlights, border lights, spot lights and curtains was a subject for comment. The manner in which the footlights are closed when not in use, the speed with which the auditorium can be converted from an assembly room to a cleared gym also came in for comment. The 400 folding bleachers at the rear of the room fold back out of the way against the wall while the 600 folding chairs may be placed on chair trucks and wheeled into recesses under the stage in a few moments, converting the auditorium with its seating capacity of 1,000 into a spacious gym.

The main thing which the public commented upon was the size of the building and its light airy arrangement of rooms. Many people who had not observed the building during construction were amazed at the size of the building and the number of classrooms and study halls which it contains. Expressions were heard from the public that for the money expended the board had given to the city one of the finest and most complete buildings possible and that even though a much larger sum of money had been spent a more serviceable building could not have been erected. Every inch of space in the structure is devoted to some purpose and there is no waste space in the building.

Numerous inquiries were made as to the floors in the corridors, lunch room, kitchen and science rooms which are of mastic tile.

The bicycle room under the locker room also came in for much favorable comment. Here a ramp with steps alongside permits those who ride bicycles to run them down the convenient ramp to the room where provision is made for storage of a large number.

The heating and ventilating system was also open for inspection and those interested in heating found the boiler room an interesting point to visit. In the majority of cases the visitors spent more than half an hour in walking through the entire building inspecting the various points of interest.

Automatic control of light by means of two "electric eyes" was another matter which caused no end of comment and interest. In the science room on the eastern side of the upper floor and in the library on the western side of the building across the hall these "eyes" are joined. When the degree of light drops to a certain point the "eyes" automatically throw on the electric lights. All lights may also be controlled independently of the "electric eye" system. Because of the unusual amount of light in the building the use of artificial lighting is required only on unusually dark days.

The locker and shower rooms in conjunction with the gym were also points on which the public made very favorable comment. While not elaborate appointments, the locker rooms were equipped for convenience and service.

To the housewife visiting the building perhaps the cafeteria and kitchen were most interesting. There the self service cafeteria is capable of handling one half of the student body in rapid order and the dining hall, which is also a combination music-room and study hall, seats the student body in two lunch periods. The kitchen is equipped with stainless steel fixtures and counters, a modern dishwasher so arranged that the dirty dishes are sent to the washer through a scissor window by the machine. There are large refrigerators for storage of perishable foods and a complete storage room where surplus supplies of food are kept.

Opening off the corridor adjacent to the lunch-room and kitchen is the teachers' lunch room. This room had not been entirely finished off yet and was first intended for storage purposes but when the light, airy room was about completed it was decided to change it and make a lunch-room for the faculty.

On entering the building the long, wide corridor and stairways attract attention immediately. Arranged along the corridors are lockers set flush with the wall. Just across the corridor from the main entrance is a bronze tablet on which the names of the members of the Board and the officials connected with the erection of the school are recorded. On either side flanking the tablet are two trophy cases set in the wall. These cases are electrically lighted and during the inspection of the building contained handsome chrysanthemums donated by Charles E. Brown and Son, Clifton avenue florists, who also presented a handsome bouquet of roses which went to the faculty.

The office of Principal Frank L. Mcagher near the main entrance to the building was also a point of interest. Equipped with an automatic recording clock and other equipment whereby the school system is always under observation, the office is the "nerve center" of the building. On Saturday and Sunday a register of visitors was kept and Sunday there was a long line of visitors awaiting access to the book.

White grading operations have not been completed to the school grounds, the roadway from both O'Reilly and Andrew streets has been completed so as to be used. The top course of stone is still to be applied. Sidewalks from both entrances are complete.

There were numerous expressions of congratulations to the board of education and Teller & Hays, architects who designed and supervised the erection of the building as well as to the general contractor, W. W. Kingston, who completed the plant in record time. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kingston were present at the building Sunday.

A flag raising ceremony which was scheduled for this morning at the school when the new flag presented by Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, Jr. O. U. A. M., was to be raised, was postponed because of the bad weather. The ceremony will be held at a later date.

GE Giants Meet This Evening

There will be an important meeting of the GE Giants this evening at the Kaslich billiard parlor on Wall street to arrange for the social party Thursday. A check-up on tickets will be made. All members of the football squad are urged to attend.
